

The city and the soul in James Harrington's Republicanism

Dr. Rachel Foxley
University of Reading

The author:

Rachel Foxley is Associate Professor in History at the University of Reading. She studied for her PhD in Cambridge with John Morrill, and was subsequently a Research Fellow at Clare Hall for three years before moving to Reading in 2004. Her principal research interests lie in the intellectual history of early modern Britain and Europe, with a particular focus on the Levellers and the political thought of the English Revolution: her book, The Levellers: Radical political thought in the English Revolution was published with Manchester University Press in 2013, and she has a series of papers published on related themes and other areas of early modern political thought. She is currently turning to a broader enquiry into early modern republicanism and its relationship to the concept of 'democracy'.