

Francis Bacon's Notion of Peace and the 1604 Treaty of London

Dr Samuel Garrett Zeitlin
University of Chicago

The author:

Samuel Garrett Zeitlin is a Collegiate Assistant Professor and Harper-Schmidt Fellow in the Society of Fellows in the Liberal Arts at the University of Chicago. He studies and teaches political philosophy, the history of political thought, and international relations. His dissertation, which he is currently working to revise into a scholarly monograph, examined the themes of war and peace in the political philosophy of Francis Bacon. He has produced several translations of the work of Carl Schmitt: Dialogues on Power and Space (Polity Press 2015), Land and Sea: A World Historical Meditation (Telos Press 2015), and The Tyranny of Values and Other Texts (Telos Press 2018). His translation and edition (co-edited with R.A. Berman) of "Land and Sea" won an award in the "Religion" category at the Independent Publisher Book Awards in 2016.
